Re: Notice of Patent Infringement Under 35 USC 287 of Wang's US Patents 4,656,605, 4,727,513 and 4,850,892

Dear Mr. Kim:

The subject patents relate to the Single, In-Line Memory Module (SIMM or SIMMs) technology widely used in computer products available in the US and other countries. This technology was invented at Wang in the early eighties and was subsequently adopted as a standard by JEDEC. Your attention is directed to JEDEC standard 21-B relating to DRAM SIP MODULES.

Based on a review of a Samsung Semiconductor data book, your company is and has been marketing in the US multiple variations of SIMM modules covered by the Wang patents. Your making, having made, using, selling, importing and/or exporting of SIMM products of the type illustrated in the data book is conduct that violates Wang's rights in this technology.

Wang is willing, at least for the present, to consider licensing your company to the SIMM patents on a non-exclusive basis. We will be pleased to meet with you, or someone of your choosing, at the earliest convenient time to discuss reasonable terms for such a license.

We look forward to your prompt reply.

Yours truly,

Michael H. Shanahan
